Currently running: r/AtriaAI (reddit.com/r/AtriaAI), Atria's subreddit, proposed, created and moderated by me. Long version of this CV: luxaelor.github.io

---

I run Atria's Reddit and community operation after time inside Reddit's EMEA ads team, and before that a non-stop queue of advertiser conversations at Meta. Outside work I have spent years in Discord servers and subreddits as a member, built a Discord community from zero as a streamer, and have been gaming since childhood. Community management is not a pivot for me. It is the same job seen from three sides: platform, company and member.

EXPERIENCE

Customer Success Manager, leading Community & Reddit

Apr 2026 – Present

Atria (AI ad intelligence) · Remote

- Own Atria's community initiatives and run its Reddit operation. Brought the idea of growing Atria's presence on Reddit organically, earning space where our users already talk, based on what I learned inside Reddit. Proposed, created and moderate r/AtriaAI, and decide where, when and whether Atria shows up in other threads.
- Monitor Reddit for conversations about Atria, its competitors and the ad-creative category. Each thread is read for relevance, sentiment and priority before anyone replies; when a reply makes sense it answers the question first, in that subreddit's register, and the product comes up only when it is the honest answer.
- Carry what the community and customers keep saying back into the company. Recurring frustrations, feature gaps and sentiment shifts reach Product and Engineering with enough context to be prioritised and investigated.
- Run a customer portfolio end to end, onboarding to renewal, including the uncomfortable conversations about limitations and changes, inside a CS function I helped build from scratch. Many threads open at once across Slack, Plain, HubSpot and Notion.

Account Manager, Reddit Ads (EMEA)

Aug 2024 – Jun 2026

Reddit · Lisbon, Portugal (remote)

- Owned and grew a book of EMEA advertisers in gaming, apps and performance. Much of the job was teaching companies how Reddit actually works before the comment section taught them.
- Advised advertisers on which communities to show up in and how: tone, format and subreddit fit, because on Reddit the community decides whether a campaign survives.
- Led the MSI Computers account: campaigns held CTR above 3.5% and sales volume tripled in Q3 2024. A PC-hardware brand talking to PC gamers where they already hang out.
- Ran many relationships and markets at once, independently and across time zones, turning platform changes and policy into recommendations clients could act on without a glossary.

Paid Media Account Specialist · Client Solutions & Support Specialist

Feb 2022 – Apr 2024

Meta (Marketing Pro and Concierge programs) · São Paulo, Brazil

- Handled a constant queue of LATAM advertiser conversations: billing, policy enforcement, campaign troubleshooting and escalations, often with a frustrated person on the other end and money on the line.
- Turned platform policy and technical complexity into steps people could take, and learned to stay calm and clear when the other side could not.

COMMUNITY & GAMING BACKGROUND

- Former streamer. Built a Discord community from zero: server structure, channels, roles and moderation, bots and automation to keep it manageable. The practical side of making a space people come back to voluntarily, seen from the creator's chair.
- Years on Reddit and Discord as a member, not a marketer: threads, channels, norms, in-jokes and the dynamics each space runs on.
- Gaming since childhood and still now. RPGs, MMOs and competitive multiplayer; currently Final Fantasy XIV, Final Fantasy VII and League of Legends.
